Section AAnswer Question 01.

Source A

From a speech by Andrei Zhdanov, a high ranking Soviet official, to communist delegates from across Europe at the founding of Cominform, September 1947.

The vague and deliberately misleading provisions of the proposed Marshall Plan amount, in essence, to a scheme to create blocs bound by obligations to the United States; it grants American money to European countries in return for giving up their economic, and then political, independence. Moreover, the key aim of the Marshall Plan is the restoration of the industrial areas of Western Germany controlled by American monopolies.

The Communists now have the special historic task of leading the resistance to the American plan for the takeover of Europe, and of boldly denouncing all those who assist American imperialism in their own countries.

Source B

From a speech by the US Secretary of State, George Marshall, to the committee considering the implementation of the Marshall Plan, 10 November 1947.

Congress will soon be called upon to make decisions which will be important for the future of our country and the world. Your responsibilities are accordingly very great.

The need for our assistance in Europe is real and it is urgent. You all, I am sure, are aware of the grave world situation and the immense responsibility which has been placed upon our country.

This economic program seeks no special advantage and pursues no sinister purpose. It is a program of construction, production and recovery. It menaces no one. It is designed to bring to an end, in the shortest possible time, the dependence of these countries upon aid from the United States. We wish to see them self-supporting.
